

Consent issues are sometimes hard to spot. We second-guess ourselves, tell ourselves it's none of our business. The balance between "too sensitive" and "too permissive" is a hard one, but we recommend airing on the side of "too sensitive," especially when your gut tells you something is up. The worst that can happen is you interrupt someone getting their groove on. This guide is intended to help you and your campmates spot and respond to problems occurring in your communal space.

